

SAN FEDELE AWARD for YOUNG artists | visual arts
Competition Announcement

The competition

Through the award, with the contribution of the Cariplo Foundation, the Cultural Foundation San Fedele intends to promote an artistic production of original work, developed from an elaboration and reflection on fundamental themes, as a result from a creative process involving artists, art dealers, public and critics. Addressed to artists under 35 years of age, the reward consists of a statue in fused bronze (30x12 cm) made from a mould specially created for the San Fedele competition in 1951, donated by Lucio Fontana. Furthermore, the winner will also participate in an exhibition at the San Fedele Gallery, together with the other two classified artists (on decision of the Award Director), the young artist nominated by the curators, and the winner of the Rigamonti award.

Competition development and regulation, scheduled for each year

Phase 1: Selection of the 24 finalist. See β Registration modality.

Phase 2: Work presentation meetings and training. The selected candidates should, in this phase, participate in a series of public presentations of their work at the San Fedele Gallery (see paragraph β Presentation meetings) and in a series of training sessions, held by specialists of various disciplines (philosophy, history of cinema, history of art) to study the theme proposed in the course of the competition. To these sessions, a meeting between artists and curators will be added to evaluate the work in progress for the competition. To enrich the training sessions, experts in creative processes will be invited in collaboration with the University Cattolica of Milan. The meetings will take place at the San Fedele Gallery or at the San Fedele Auditorium and are mandatory to participate at the award.

Phase 3: Completed the cycle of work presentations, training sessions and the project verification, the artists will create an original work based on the theme chosen by the Director and participate with their work in the collective exhibition, to be held within the month of July, at the San Fedele Gallery (see β Award exhibition). The young artists can avail themselves of the collaboration of the curators/tutors, during the realization of the project for the Award. For the artists of the previous editions it will be possible to contact the Award secretariat to have a curator/tutor assigned.

Presentation of the Work

The presentations of the candidate's work, open to the public, will be held at the San Fedele Gallery, and moderated by the Award Director and a visiting professor chosen for each occasion by the Director. During each meeting from four to six artists will be presented. The artists will be provided with a video projector, DVD player, and stereo set. Other means than the ones provided by the San Fedele Gallery will not be admitted. The presentation cycle of the works will be held from the month October until the month of December, according to the calendar previously decided by the award direction. During the presentation of the projects to the public, the participants will be asked to complete an evaluation form for each artist presented that evening. Each session will be prepared after a meeting between the curators and the Award Director, in which the artists involved that day, will participate.

NB: In case of withdrawal of a participant the Director, referenced by the curators, preserves the faculty of substitution on his judgement.

Award exhibition

An Award Exhibition will be held within the month of July and will last for approximately one month. This exhibition will be open to the participants of all editions according to the limit of age imposed by regulation. Every entitled artist has to present an unpublished work according to the theme of the correspondent year, within the terms decided by the award direction. The dimensions or length of the works (in case of video or performance) will be communicated to the artists. The number of projects shown at the award exhibition will include the winners of each year (first, second and third classified and the young artists selected by the curators) as well as a selection \tilde{n} at the discretion of the Award Director, on proposal of the curators/tutors \tilde{n} of the best projects presented. Also exhibited will be the winner of the Paolo Rigamonti Award. The San Fedele Gallery will publish a catalogue of the award exhibition containing images of the shown work, a short CV of the artist, texts by the Director and a choice of curators.

Jury Panel

The jury will be composed of twelve members, one of which will be the Award Director, as well as the curators/tutors nominated by the Director, each with a single vote. The other members will be chosen amongst critics, collectors, artists, and journalists, nominated by the Director. Each member of the jury will dispose of three votes, respectively worth 3, 2 and 1 point, to be assigned to three different projects. The voting will be secret. The twelfth member of the jury will be the public who, based on the forms compiled during the day, will assign three votes of respectively 3, 2 and 1 point. The score decided by the public will be held valid also for the successive editions in which the candidate is entitled to participate. In order to assign the Award, the winning project has to have collected at least 12 points. In the event of a tie, a new ballot will be held by the Director and the curators/tutors, disposing of one vote each. The members of the jury express individually the proper preference for a single project. In order to assign the Award, the winning projects must have collected at least four preferences. In the event of a tie, the Director and curators/tutors will vote again. The curators will then express a special nomination for a project, disposing each of one vote.

The Cultural Foundation San Fedele can use the images of the projects presented during the Award for promotion of the initiative and the promotion the various collateral activities of the Cultural Foundation. The winners who have presented video projects (first classified, artist chosen by the curators/ tutors and the Rigamonti Award winner) will be admitted by right to the art film festival of Asolo, according to the regulation imposed by the festival, visible at www.asolofilmfestival.it

Phase 4: During the first two years, the winner of the Award will exhibit together with the winner of the Rigamonti Award. The other two classified can also participate at the discretion of the Award Director.

Third year: The final event.

Phase 5: The third year, instead of just an exhibition of the winners, a final episode will be organized in autumn 2013, consisting in an event, open to the city of Milan, in which, besides the exhibition all sectors of the Award will be involved.

Shipments and insurance

Shipment of the material and works will be at participants expense. The San Fedele Gallery will take extreme care in handling the works, but won't hold any responsibility for damage, loss or theft. In case an artist wants to insure the work, this will be charged to the latter. The works not exposed at the Award exhibition have to be withdrawn within one month from the closing date of the exhibition. In case of failed withdrawal within the established date the San Fedele Gallery declines all responsibility. NB: subscribing the participation documents for the competition implies the full acceptance of the award regulation. The award direction will maintain the right to decide on all non specified issues concerning the regulation. In case of dispute the Italian version is authoritative. For any dispute the law court of Milan has jurisdiction.
